ELECTRONIC NEWS

Imagine a system where all you want to know about electronics is here. first the user needs to sign up an account to receive notifications about the latest news in electronics world   and electronic devices. the system offers to build the electronic device user wants to buy based on choosing the specifications he is interested about like: type , price , color…etc.

The user:

The user can compare between devices, add his favorite devices to cart and when the user settles on certain device, The system lists online websites where he can buy it from . The system offers daily electronic tips to the user like: how to extend the lifetime of a certain device, save the battery, instructions during charging and many other tips. if the user wants to know about electronic information he has no idea about it, all he needs to do is to search about this information in the section of technology information where he will find the description of it like: graphic card, ram , rom and some examples on it .

Summary:

Finally the website provides all the user need to choose the best device for him with the least possible cost .